Bearcats Seek Winning Score Against Miners

In Saturday Game at Rolla the Maryville Gridsters are Hoping to Retrieve Defeat Suffered Last Year

Maryville's Bearcats went to Rolla this morning to play the Miners in a conference game Saturday afternoon. This is the second MIAA game to be played away from home by the Maryville eleven this year.

Rolla, a new member of the conference this year, joined the MIAA early last spring, in time to compete in the conference track meets. Since this is their first season as a conference member, they will be out to raise their standing from last place to a higher rating in the conference bracket. Cape Girardeau and Kirksville now lead the group, with Maryville in third place.

So far this season, the Rolla Miners have lost every game, but their opponents have been tough competition. With the addition of three of their regulars, hurt in their first game, they will be able to present a stronger line up. Last year the Miners beat the Bearcats by a score of 18-14.

The Bearcats will be out for revenge and will not be stopped until they have settled for last year's score.

Workouts for the Bearcats this week have been hampered by several minor injuries. Captain Palumbo has been favoring bruised spots, as well as Rhodes, Flanders, Hicks, and Livingston—but most of them will be able to go by game time.

Ernie Sorenson, hard driving back, will be eligible for conference competition, which will strengthen Maryville's backfield considerably.

In the game at Cape last week, the boys showed one of the best pass defense games of the year. Coaches E. A. Davis and Wilbur Stalcup were pleased with the results which kept Cape from using their passing attack to any advantage.

Rolla has McGregor, a flashy little halfback, who is an outstanding broken field runner. Phiffer, an end who does their punting, is one of the best ends in the conference.

The men making the trip are as follows: Captain Palumbo, center; Rouse, guard; Flanders, guard; Molitoris, tackle; Claybaugh, tackle; Boatwright, tackle; Hicks, end; Zuchowski, end; Francis, end; Huntsman, end; Good, half; Yates, half; Bernau, fullback; Moore, fullback; Sorenson, fullback; Rulon, quarterback.

Seven or eight more men were to be added to this list, making a total of twenty-two or twenty-three men.

Miss DeLuce to Capital

Miss Olive S. DeLuce has received an invitation to a special dinner at Jefferson City with Governor and Mrs. Guy B. Park, Mrs. Chastain Butler, state president of the Federated Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Frederick B. Hall, national chairman of Federated Women's Clubs. At this meeting, which will be November 6, there is to be a painting presented to the Governor's mansion by the artist Nuderscher, a St. Louis painter.

Miss Hopkins has charge of the Observation of Art Week in the training school. She has announced that there will be special programs in the grade school and in the high school assembly next week.

Tower Staff Appointments Announced

Deadline for Pictures is Advanced to November 15 to Take Care of the Last-Minute Rush

James Stephenson, editor, and Kenneth Manifold, business manager of the Tower, announce the appointment of Eldon Thompson, Eula Bowen, Ludmila Vavra, Earl Holt, Gory Wiggins, Aileen Sifers, Frederick Schneider, Miller Weeda, Eleanor Batt, June Morgan, Elizabeth Wright, and Henry Robinson to the 1936 Tower staff.

At the same time they announce that the deadline for pictures has been postponed until November 15, because the last-minute rush to get pictures made for the Tower has completely swamped the photographers.

Eula Bowen, sophomore in the College, is a graduate of the College high school. She was associate editor of the third edition of Memories, and was a member of the College high newspaper staff. Her home is in Maryville.

Earl Holt, a junior, was officially connected with the Maryvillian, Maryville high school annual one year and unofficially three years. He was photograph editor his senior year and an assistant to the photographer the other three years. He is the son of Mrs. Bess Holt.

Gory Wiggins was assistant editor of the Tiger, yearbook of the Princeton, Missouri, high school. He was employed by the Princeton Post for four years, and he attended the Mergenthaler Linotype School in Chicago. This is Wiggins' second year on the Northwest Missourian staff. He is the senior partner in the partnership of Wiggins and Woodruff, mimeograph operators.

Aileen Sifers, a sophomore from Richmond, was feature editor of The Echo, Richmond high annual. She was associate editor of the Echoette, Richmond high student news publication. Last year, Miss Sifers attended the Kansas State Teachers College at Pittsburg, Kansas.

Frederick Schneider, a sophomore, was editor-in-chief of the Stanberry high school news columns part of his junior year and all of his senior year. He was employed by the Stanberry Headlight for six years. During his junior and senior years, he was president of his classes. Last year he and Dwight Dalbey represented this paper at the Missouri (Continued from page 3)

Hedgerow Artists Draw Good Houses

Two Rollicking Plays Bring Outbursts of Laughter—Final Number Cast In More Serious Mould

The Hedgerow Players caused all that merriment in the College Auditorium last Monday afternoon. Blame it all on "The Physician in Spite of Himself." The players kept the audience in all stages of mirth, from gentle chuckles to near hysteria.

Sganarelle becomes a physician in spite of himself when his wife points him out as such to two strangers in search of a physician's services. Revenge is her motive for she tells them that it will take force to make the doctor acknowledge his prowess—it did. They take the false physician to the home of Geronte whose daughter, Lucinde, has become dumb.

Sganarelle's diagnosis of the case caused much laughter in the audience. Hic haec hoc; amo amas amat; principia, numero; with these scientific Latin words, the doctor diagnosed the patient and pronounced her—dumb. He prescribed bread and wine as a remedy (to loosen the tongue) as the first step in her cure. During the profound speech of the great man, one of the servants wilted before the eyes of an almost hysterical audience.

The remainder of the play concerned the curing of the patient's disease (which arose from the heart) by bringing to her the lover, Leandre. When the father finds that Leandre has inherited money from an uncle, he consents to Leandre's marriage with Lucinde. The play ends happily, especially for the physician who was to be hanged for being false.

The two servants, played by Jasper Deeter and Terry Martin, were especially able in portraying the vacant mind. Their almost constant obeisance at the opening of each act by loudly clapping for stage lights, added a great deal of comedy. Three loud stamps backstage before the curtain went up on each act, were typical of the French play.

Romance everywhere? Melisande found it, but it took an afternoon tea rather than a morning in the woods to make her appreciate it.

Hers was a romance of story books, her knight wore a purple robe. In her dreams, she saw fairies in the garden.

She wanted a man who was different, one who could live with her in her dreams. She couldn't bear those who dressed in modern fashion, enjoyed their meals, made polite talk, and worked in the stock exchange.

She found her knight of the purple robe. First, he was only a vision in the moonlight, then, when morning came, he proved a reality. A true prince coming in the guise of a woodcutter's son.

Oh, disillusionment that it was, to find him in her father's house dressed like any other man, making polite talk, discussing golf, food, and the stock exchange! Her dream world vanished until Gervase brought it back by sight.

With Sounding Sirens Police Escort Children to Kansas City Art Museum

And I thought only presidents or mayors had police escorts to whirl them through the big city. That's what comes of being a dogmatic college man, instead of a free-thinking third grader. But then—"a little child shall lead them."

Think of it! Police sirens blowing . . . a clear road ahead thru traffic . . . of all the excitement . . . thrills galore. To be met at the Kansas City bridge and taken to the Nelson Art Gallery by a police escort! To ride in state thru the streets with sirens blowing, just as though you were emissaries to the king! And it was a complete surprise!

"Do you think the sirens can hold on till we get to the gallery?" asked one, small boy who was afraid it was a matter of breath-holding.

He was assured that police sirens could keep it up all day without taking breath. His fears allayed, he could sit back in his seat to enjoy himself.

The most fun for some of the lucky youngsters came when policemen took them into a police car. They were able to hear police calls, and see policemen direct traffic.

"A policeman sure gave one man a bawling-out," one youngster reported.

This was certainly a grand way to spend your first day away from Maryville. Many of the eighteen children of the College elementary school never had been away from Maryville before.

Some had heard there were real wild Indians in the gallery, but they learned this was not true. Instead they saw handsome sculptured Indians. "No! No! little girl, not cigar store Indians, regular Navajo Indians."

On the second floor, Sam Hawthorne told them all about the colonial exhibits on display there.

The only critic in the party was Lincoln Noblet, who surveyed the colonial rooms with a disappointed gaze.

"None of these pictures look very famous to me," he said.

"How did you expect a famous picture to look?" he was asked.

"Oh, Jesus and Mary," he replied.

Later when the party had seen the great Spanish altarpiece and had viewed the "Sistine Madonna," Lincoln changed his mind.

When the children left the gallery, the cars toured Penn Valley Park, where the children saw the Scout and the Pioneer Mother.

The children were taken to Kansas City by their mothers, in company with Virginia Todd, third grade teacher and Miss Margaret Sutton, assistant kindergarten and primary supervisor.

THE NEW BLUE BOOK

Probably no other book of the College can help a student in the ways of society on this particular campus, and elsewhere, as the College Blue Book. The newest edition of this valuable volume is off the press, and is ready for new upperclassmen and freshmen for the asking.

The first Book was published in April, 1934, and the revised edition is dated October, 1935. The Book is copyrighted in 1935 by the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College in Maryville, but it is used as orientation references in high schools and colleges in several sections.

There is probably no item of importance omitted from the new edition of the Book that would confront a student in social affairs, as the book deals in matters of College relationships, introductions, correspondence, invitations, receptions, teas, dinners, dances, dates, public places, public eating places, week-ends, appropriate dress, and sportsmanship.

It is sometimes an embarrassing situation not to know exactly how to act at a party, dinner, dance, etc., and, to answer questions concerning good form which might confront a student at any of these affairs, the Blue Book has been compiled and published. Contributions to the publication has been made either directly or indirectly by over three hundred students who believed that their knowledge of a certain social subject might prove valuable to thousands of other students. Their efforts have not been in vain!

CORN-HOG PROGRAM APPROVED

The past week-end marked a milestone in the history of the new deal administration when the farmers of the nation approved the administration's corn-hog program. Due to the fact that so many College student's parents are farmers, the approval of the program should be of great interest to them.

Of course, like most every other question, the problem had foes and friends, and each set gave specific and logical reasons for being for or against the proposition.

Exponents gave as some of their reasons for being for the program, as follows:

1. It cuts the supply and raises the farm prices.
2. It raises farm income and parity of farm prices to industrial prices.
3. It gives the farmer a more equitable share of nation's income. Factories and corporations limit production, why shouldn't the farmers?

Opponents gave as some of their reasons for being against the program, as follows:

1. It causes an economy of scarcity rather than abundance.
2. It is unconstitutional, for it aids one class at the expense of another.
3. It causes too high prices for consumers to buy their needed goods.

In the corn-hog program, the Agriculture Administration Act is being tested in action, and time alone will tell whether it is the solution to the agriculture depression.

WOMEN'S PUBLIC ACTIVITIES

Today women are becoming more important in public affairs perhaps than at any other time in the history of the world. Their activities have been extended beyond the home until today many women are filling jobs formerly held by men. Today, in our colleges, there are many women who probably expect to hold some position in life on a professional level.

Will a woman ever be president of the United States? The question is suggested by the formation of an organization looking toward that end. It is called the "League for a Woman President and Vice-President." Bearing in mind the changes that have occurred in woman's political status in this country in the last few decades, one would hesitate to predict failure for the presidency.

A woman candidate for the presidency is not unprecedented. Fifty years ago, Belva Lockwood ran for the highest office in the country on the Equal Rights party ticket. At that time, she was thought of more as a freak than as a candidate for president.

—But today it is different, and it is not too uncertain that a woman sometime may not become president of this great nation.

Social Events

Cubyettes Have Social Evening.

The Cubyettes, College high school pep squad, invaded the campus Wednesday evening in search of the many peculiar articles usually demanded at a scavenger hunt. The group was divided and the idea was to see which group would be the first to bring back the "bacon."

After the hunt, games were played in Social Hall. Costumes typical of Halloween were worn. The room was decorated in black and orange. Dorothy Johnsen, Opal Walden, and Wilma Clemens planned the decorations. Refreshments were served by Eva Jean Ferguson, Ruth Hallensly, and Dorothy Needham.

Entertainment was planned by Marian Haller, Miriam Martin, Edra Johnson, and Mary Ruth New.

Bearcats Lose to Cape Indians 20-7 Saturday

MIAA STANDINGS

Team	W	L	Pct.
Cape Girardeau	2	0	1.000
Kirkville	2	0	1.000
Maryville	1	1	.500
Warrensburg	1	2	.333
Springfield	1	2	.333
Rolla	0	2	.000

After smashing and passing their way to a seven point lead in the first half, during which they clearly outplayed the Indians, the Bearcats fell before the second-half driving power of Cape Girardeau, to be beaten 20 to 7, last Friday night in the Southeast Missouri city.

When Rulon crossed the pay-off line in the second quarter from the 2 yard line after Zuchowski had snatched a pass on the 30-yard line and raced to the 2, the Bearcats climaxed an offensive that had the Indians backed into their own territory throughout the first half. The Bearcats' fast charging line tied the Indians up until they were unable to gain much ground all during the first half.

Beginning the second half, however, the Indians' line sprang back into action. The braves charged 65 yards for a touchdown with but 4 minutes of the second half played. Mud Bona raced around the end for the other two Cape scores, both in the last quarter of the game.

Some of the best punting of the year by Bernau kept the ball continuously in Cape territory in the first half and Rulon's passes to Zuchowski paved the way for the marker. Arthur Yates opened the way for many Bearcat gains with his exceptional blocking.

DOPE BUCKET

By J. O. KING

After going to Warrensburg to see those Mules and Miners battle in one of the conference games of last week, I have come to the conclusion that the Miners are not as strong as they would have had us believe at the first of the year. However, they have one of the best running backs in the state in McGregor, the fleet-footed quarterback.

Maybe the Miners would have looked better if they had been playing some team more their own strength—Warrensburg has one of the strongest football teams in the history of the MIAA. I believe that if the Mules had played Kirkville and Cape Girardeau later in the season there would have been a difference in the score—in Warrensburg's favor.

Again there are three conference games this week, every team in the conference is battling to either make the conference standings more or less of a tangle.

The big battle of the week is that between the Kirkville Bulldogs and the Cape Girardeau Indians. The winner will be the leader of the conference and will also be the dopest choice for conference winner. As last year, the two strong teams fight for supremacy while the underdogs, Maryville, Springfield, Warrensburg and Rolla battle to keep out of the cellar position. The position the underdogs battle to keep away from is being held by the Rolla Miners at the present.

Springfield goes to Warrensburg to play the strong eleven of the Mules—I'll take the Mules by a big advantage.

Cape Girardeau at Kirkville hard to choose a winner, but I'll say Kirkville will fight to win their fourth straight conference tilt and I believe they will win.

Rolla vs. the Bearcats—Now don't think I have gone against the Bearcats because I picked them to lose last week, because I think their chances of victory this week are high, and therefore I pick them to win over the Miners.

Our hats go off to those men comprising the substitutes who don't get to make the trips or see much action in any of the games, but continue to come out for practice in order that the varsity may have some real competition in practice. It takes grit to keep fighting when you know that you are doomed to disappointment. It is through such men as these that a winning combination is made. Some day their courage and determination will be rewarded.

I would hate to go out for football, work hard, play better in scrimmage than some others, think each week that I would get into the game long enough to settle down anyway, and then see my chances of playing slipping away as each game draws near to a close—Yes, I think I would check in my suit—but some boys don't.

Basketball Practice Now is Under Way

Coach Wilbur Stalcup has issued this year's basketball call for practices, held four nights a week. Twenty-four men reported for practice and eighteen are now working out regularly.

Seven lettermen have reported for practice, five being last year's lettermen and two lettermen of two years ago. Last year's lettermen are Donald Sipes, Hal Bird,

WILBUR STALCUP
Bearcat Basketball Coach

Roy Brown, John Wright, and Orville Johnson. Brown was all-conference center and Johnson was all-conference forward on last year's conference team. The two lettermen of two years ago are Bud Green and Paul Adams.

Darryl Waggoner, a sophomore, who played on last year's squad, and Russell Dowell are the only other upperclassmen on the yet. Virgil Woodside is expected to be out in about five weeks. He has just undergone an operation to straighten his wrist which was broken last year, thus causing him to quit the squad.

The rest of the men practicing are freshmen. They are: Clarence Stark, Richard Shrout, Charles Waterman, Willis Goza, Boyd Larmer, Evan Hunter, Charles Wiles, Pierce Gardner, and D. Gates.

Miss Olive S. DeLuce, chairman of the Fine Arts Department of the College, gave an illustrated lecture on Modern Art at the Ladies' Club of Mound City Tuesday afternoon.

In the Spotlight

ARTHUR YATES

Arthur Yates is a junior in the College and is one of the few lettermen on the College football team. Yates received his first letter when a freshman in College, but because of an injury last season, did not play the required amount to letter again.

Yates, known to his teammates as "Doc," is one of the best punters on the squad. For the past few games, Yates has been one of the best ground gainers for the Bearcats.

What! Ten of our students going into the creamery business? Well, not yet! They were only investigating, and a delightful investigation it was, too.

Mr. Bert Cooper was the cause of the whole thing. He was helping his vocational guidance class get a start on it's first job analysis.

Wilson Dowden, of the Nodaway Creamery, guided the group through the creamery building. He explained the testing, sampling, and churning of cream. The group longed for those pleasant hot days we had last summer, as it stood shivering in the refrigerator room.

Mr. Dowden answered as members of the group asked detailed questions about the business. Members of the class struggled cheerfully to write his statements into their information blanks.

Hedgerow Artists Draw Good Houses

ing the romance in ordinary things.

Can that Melisande, whom we see as the curtain is pulled, find real romance in the stuffing of a chicken?

What a romantic age this is, hence, "The Romantic Age," presented by the Hedgerow Players to a crowd in the College auditorium Monday evening. The play, written by A. A. Milne, gave accurate portrayals of our modern misconception of romance. Actors interpreted these portrayals with a delightful ease and sincerity of feeling.

Especially well done was the part of Jane, the twentieth century girl who thought that things were just right as they were. Perhaps she was rather a misfit in society, but she fitted perfectly into Bobby's ideas after Melisande had rejected him.

It was a play of contrasts and similarities. The pastoral scene was no exception. Ern, the lowest conceivable thing in the realm of humanity, was very different from our proud Genvase Malloy.

Melisande, romantic and sweet, was so different from Jane, so practical and harsh.

Tuesday evening, "Inheritors," by Susan Glaspell, played to an only partly filled house, was received with much enthusiasm. The audience applauded the players back time and again. The very nobleness of the theme gripped the emotions of the group.

Madeline was determined to live the best that was in her, so that the world would be better for her having been there. She was willing to spend years in prison if she could assist even in a small way to keep the democratic spirit of our country alive.

Pitiful and sad was Madeline's father who had seen dear one after dear one snatched away because they refused to let everyone tend to his own business but worked to what they believed to be the best.

A strong note of patriotism pervaded the play. This was very natural since a part of it took place soon after the World War, when national sentiment was high.

Costumes worn by the girls of that period evoked much mirth from the young members of the audience. They brought back memories to older ones, since they were very accurate replicas of oldtimes.

The whole play showed how something that is held as an ideal of one generation may become the laughing stock of the next.

Talks About Art

Miss Olive S. DeLuce, chairman of the Fine Arts department in the College, gave an address, "Art Now" at an art tea in her honor Thursday afternoon, when the District Federation of Women's Clubs met at Hamilton. In connection with the district meeting, the second annual exhibit of paintings by women artists of the First District of the Missouri Federation of Women's clubs was held Thursday and Friday.

Assisted by Miss DeLuce, who is Fine Arts Chairman in the Federated Club, the board of directors have planned for the encouragement of art in the First District by having an art contest in which every club in the district can participate. A fund has been set aside for an award to be in the form of an original etching or painting, which will be given to the club doing the most outstanding work in the field.
